

CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSIONS AND SUGGESTIONS

This chapter presents conclusions and suggestions regarding the research results. And the discussion that has been described previously. Here are the conclusions and suggestions.

A. Conclusion

Learning English using songs is one of the alternative solutions that teachers can use to teach listening comprehension to find out the effectiveness of children's English songs on student motivation. It makes students more relaxed in learning, so they can understand it easily. Research on seventh-grade students of MTs Miftahul Khaer Mare obtained several objectives of listening comprehension,

Based on the results of interviews found in the effectiveness of children's English songs. The first is related to the feeling when learning English, especially in listening. From the research, it shows the feeling of pleasure from MA, NS, SY, MT, A.NA, RR, MN, MS, AND IN students. The second is related to the teaching method given. the third difficulty in listening to songs in English. The fourth is related to feelings including likes and dislikes, the fifth question is understanding or not understanding. Teaching methods have an influence on learning to listen.

B. Suggestion

1. For Teacher

Like us, English teachers must have strategies when teaching in the classroom. So that students will be more active and do not feel bored learning. One strategy is to provide interesting songs that will motivate students in listening comprehension and practice listening a lot because it has a lot of influence to improve their English skills.

2. For students

The students should learn more about English. the students have to improve their achievement, students have to learn more actively to increase their vocabulary. So, students easily improve all skills.

3. For researchers

For other researchers, especially for further researchers, it is better to start from now on to learn about research methods and this research can be a reference for making research related to this research
